

PAST PRESIDENT

The 2020 year had the ability to be a great year for many Saskatchewan Athletic Members. The indoor season started well with incredible performances by age-group athletes, university athletes, high performance athletes and master athletes. Many records were broken during the indoor season which spoke well for the upcoming outdoor season.

Then in the late winter, COVID-19 spread across the world ending most competitions for Saskatchewan Athletic Members. This included not only the athletes, but also officials and administrators involved in our sport.

One of the biggest athletic events, being the 2020 Tokyo Olympic Games, were moved to 2021, plus many other very important competitions for athletes were cancelled or postponed to 2021.

The Saskatchewan Athletics Staff worked from home for part of the year since the main office was closed. Also, the Saskatchewan Athletics Board continued to hold their regular meeting via zoom or with social distancing. Together, these two groups kept Saskatchewan Athletics functioning in a very bizarre year of a world pandemic.
